Sarah Bidmead's COLUMN

PANGEA & CONNECTA are consolidated as the most dynamic transport networks. The 2016 Global Meetings of both networks will be held in Abu Dhabi from 17th to 19th October and all forwarders Members are invited to attend.

PANGEA, global network of independent freight forwarders with 190 agents in 95 countries and CONNECTA, a network of forwarders specialized in air transport with 125 IATA agents in 50 countries, face the second half of 2016 by celebrating important milestones in their expansion and activity, as well as a great meeting to take place this autumn: their Global Meetings. For the first time, they will be celebrated together in Abu Dhabi from 17th to 19th October during the event FREIGHTCAMP, and expects to bring together record attendance.

PANGEA: Wide introduction and specialization

Five years after their start-up, PANGEA has become one of the international networks of independent forwarders counting on a greater present, surpassing 190 agents in 95 countries of the five continents. The list of members can be accessed here and is made up of agents with a strong position in their local markets. Furthermore, many of the PANGEA members have the main certifications of the sector (IATA, FIATA, AEO and local entities) and are accredited with high level of specialization in complex projects and operations.

The majority of these agents have been members for many years and maintain a regular level of cooperation that allows them to opt for new business opportunities all over the world. Some of the most recent achievements of the PANGEA members can be consulted in the news section of the networks webpage and cover from intermodal transport projects to the movement of special or voluminous loads.

CONNECTA: The airfreight specialist network

On their part, CONNECTA, with barely a year existence has become the fastest growing airfreight specialist network. At present more than 125 agents from 50 countries form part of CONNECTA and can be consulted here. All the agents have IATA/CASS/CNS certifications and many of them are accredited by the local air authorities. Apart from the more conventional transport services, the CONNECTA members offer other highly specialised solutions such as AOG desktop, critical shipments, dangerous goods transport, perishable products and live animals, amongst others.

A growing number of these operations are made in collaboration with other CONNECTA members, as cooperation with other forwarders allows agents to access more attractive opportunities and compete on equal terms with the multinationals without losing their independence.

FREIGHTCAMP 2016: Joint conference of PANGEA and CONNECTA

Without doubt, the most waited for event of the year for PANGEA and CONNECTA members is the global conference that every year brings together the representatives of the network members where they share experiences, make contacts, and explore opportunities for joint business. This year the attraction of the event will be even greater, because the PANGEA and CONNECTA global meetings will be held together in Abu Dhabi from 17th to 19th October as part of the event called FREIGHTCAMP 2016.

For 3 days, attendees will enjoy conferences, one-2-one meeting sessions and social networking events as getting to know the charms of Abu Dhabi. The aim of FREIGHTCAMP 2016 is to foment personal contacts between members, which are the key for generating confidence and for starting to do business with new partners as well as strengthening existing partnerships.

In this sense, year after year it has been demonstrated that collaboration between agents notably increases after the conferences. For example, after the PANGEA Conference in Barcelona 2012 the number of shipments between members of the network increased a 52%, a 60% after the Bangkok Conference in 2013 and a 46% after the event in 2014 in Kuala Lumpur. Then, the Global Conference held in Barcelona in 2015 made the activity of the network increase a 97% over the following months. This year, with the joint celebration of the PANGEA and CONNECTA conferences in Abu Dhabi during FREIGHTCAMP 2016, it is expected to break new records as regards the establishment of contacts and the joint commercial activities between members. And after the event, members will be able to continue in contact the rest of the year by means of collaboration and working tools that the intranet of each network offers.

New tools for fomenting cooperation

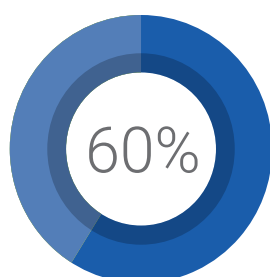

Apart from facilitating personal contact between members during the respective global conferences, both PANGEA and CONNECTA offer agents tools for maintaining contact over the year, by sharing information and news, by promoting participation and making networking easy with technology. For example, in 2106 the whole system that supports the intranet of the two networks has been renovated to incorporate new tools such as a notification system of payments between agents, a shared holiday calendar and the revolutionary Internal Message Center (IMC), an exclusive communication system for members that permits a more agile and safe collaboration.

Just as Sarah Bidmead, Network Manager of PANGEA and CONNECTA indicates:

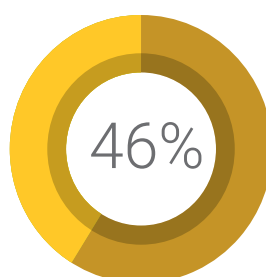

“ When dealing with the development of business relationships, personal contact is the key and that's why it's important to attend the PANGEA and CONNECTA global meetings. The members of both networks will have the opportunity to know, meet, make contacts and explore business synergies with leading counterpart forwarders from worldwide. And after the event they will be able to maintain contact through the exclusive tools we offer.

Container Weight Verification Requirement effective from the 1st July by FJT LOGISTICS (Australia)

W

e inform all FJT customers and overseas partners
that the container
weight verification

global requirement as outlined by the Safety of Life at Sea Convention (SOLAS) will be enforced from Friday next, July 1, 2016. All shippers, will be responsible for the verification of the packed container's weight or run the risk of missing an intended sailing if Verified Gross Mass (VGM) documentation compliance is ignored.

Cargo will not be loaded onto a vessel unless a certified VGM is provided.

The Shipper (listed as shipper in the bill of lading or sea waybill) is responsible for providing the VGM to the carrier in reasonable time prior to vessel loading.

The VGM consists of cargo weight including packaging and dunnage (securing) materials and tare weight of container. The Carrier is responsible for relaying the VGM to its terminal. Container means standard containers, tank containers, flat racks and bulk containers. All packages, packaging and dunnage material are to be weighed and added to the tare weight of the container

Carriers WILL NOT LOAD containers without having the VGM and shippers should be ready to comply before July 1, 2016.

As an importer you will need to be sure that your overseas suppliers comply with these rules, as an exporter you will need to comply. To importers FJT strongly recommends that you send this notice to all your suppliers to make sure they are aware of, and comply with these new requirements.

To exporters FJT staff will assist you in complying with the new rules. Please note that compliance may result in additional charges for transport and weighbridge costs. These may depend on State and location of cargo. It is early days and FJT believe many shippers and shipping lines may not be ready for 1st July.
